

The evolution of ideas

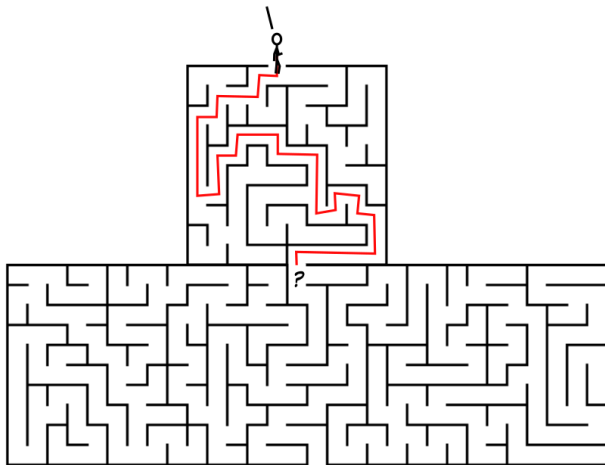

Sometimes solving a problem is like solving a labyrinth.

Sometimes it's too complex for your mind.

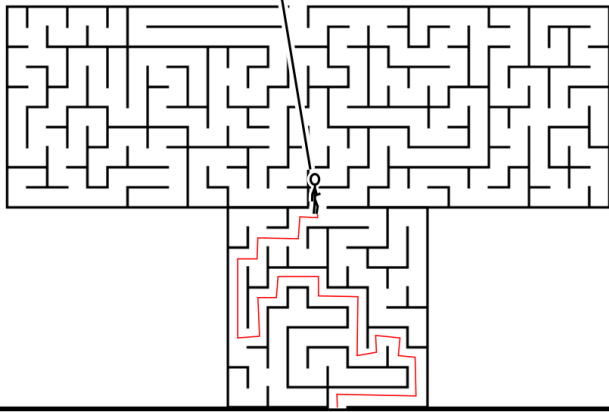

*No matter how far you get, you will only find out the labyrinth is way bigger than expected.
You can find comfort in, that other people can build further upon your experiences (this is your civilization)*

Except that sometimes we might find out, that we started in the wrong direction set by our predecessors.

History have plenty examples of dead civilizations.

But Fear not!

New civilizations will build on our experiences, just like we did on experiences from previous civilizations.

(This is the evolution of ideas)
